

SPONCH MAKHEKHE

Artist Profile

“My name is Sponch Makhekhe, but others call be Sponch, or Sponch Cakes or Kakes”

THE NAME SPONCH MAKHEKHE

Sponch Makhekhe, whose real name is Munty Derrick Maseko, is a musician hailing from Mzimhlophe in Soweto, South Africa. The name Sponch Makhekhe was given to him by his grandmother after he suffered burns from hot water in a kettle while attempting to grab sponge cakes placed on top of a kitchen counter when he was a child. His friends on the streets embraced the name, and he chose to adopt it as he sought a stage name for his musical career.

MAKING MUSIC

Although he began his journey as a Kwaito artist, Sponch Makhekhe has repeatedly transformed his identity as a musician, effortlessly branching out into various music genres, including Afro-House and now Amapiano. His lyrical prowess allows him to blend Kwaito hooks with vernacular hip-hop rhythms in tracks like 'Khululeka' alongside DJ Big Sky & BosPianii. Meanwhile, songs like 'Ubsuku Bonke' with BosPianii showcase his talent for captivating soul-music enthusiasts.

SPONCH MAKHEKHE CHRONICLES

Sponch Makhekhe's passion for music was ignited by his fascination with Kwaito icon Mzambiya, who rose to fame as a child-star. He subsequently received mentorship from the renowned Kwaito group Alaska, accompanying them on tours whenever possible; and learning how to write and structure a song. His entry into music creation was marked by studio sessions with DJ and producer, DJ Kent, leading to the release of 'Uvukile Umalambane' — His first ever radio single.
